COMMAND TEAM UPDATE

The Regiment has taken great strides to grow and strengthen our parachuting capability. In October, The Queen's Own Rifles of Canada proudly welcomed our third Jumpmaster from within the past year. Master Corporal Do joined the Air Cell, while another nine members completed their Basic Parachutist qualification at the Canadian Army Advanced Warfare Centre.

Throughout the month, Riflemen were taken through progressive and dynamic training to prepare them for Exercise MAROON SWORD 2. Under the keen eyes of our non-commissioned officers, soldiers practiced techniques for clearing trenches and performing section-level attacks. After deploying to Petawawa at the end of October, approximately 100 personnel were involved in live-fire trench-clearing.

Amidst acrid smoke, exploding pyrotechnics and the incessant din of gunfire, the unit moved through a complex environment. The event challenged our young leaders, while exposing them to the realities of contemporary warfare. Several participants were veterans of Operation UNIFIER and had undertaken or supervised within similar ranges with the Armed Forces of Ukraine.

It was a pleasure to be joined on exercise by Honorary Colonel Major-General (Retired) Fraser and Honorary Lieutenant-Colonel Minhas. The cold could not dampen their spirits, as the camaraderie and excitement of the weekend was remarkable.

As we head into the month of Remembrance, it is important to acknowledge how much has been accomplished. The foundation of our success however, is due to spirit of this great Regiment and the sacrifices of those who have served and Fallen. We look forward to seeing the Regimental Family at the multitude of events and ceremonies that will be taking place across the city in the coming weeks.

Finally, we look forward to sharing our plans for the 80th Anniversary of the Liberation of the Netherlands.

IN ACTION: MASTER CORPORAL BALOGH

Cold Weather Operation Leader (Shilo) & Arctic Operations Advisor (Resolute Bay and Cambridge Bay)

From 15 Jan to 25 Mar 2024, I was a candidate on Cold Weather Operation Leader (CWOL) and Arctic Operations Advisor (AOA). CWOL began with 12 days in the field in Shilo where we practiced skiing, navigation practice and patrolling. Although the terrain was tough and the distance travelled was long, each section began to form as cohesive elements. Training unique to temperate winter environments was conducted including ice reconnaissance, cold water immersion, austere airstrips and an avalanche rescue familiarization. Concluding CWOL we conducted a solo survival exercise to confirm our bushcraft and survival skills.

After CWOL finished, the course flew to Resolute Bay for Arctic Operations Advisor (AOA). We began with a week-long survival exercise where we learned from the Canadian Rangers about various air-to-ground signals, how to build and live in different shelters (including igloos and snow caves), and generally how to operate as a section in an austere Arctic environment. Following that, we spent time becoming proficient in section movement on LOSVs, and navigating in the Arctic.

The final task was to plan and conduct a patrol to a community. My section was assigned the community of Cambridge Bay. While there we conducted a couple community engagement events: one with the Army Cadets (3004 Nanook) and one at the local elementary school. We then patrolled the land with Rangers Jimmy, David, and Kale. They were instrumental in the success of the patrol due to their intimate knowledge of the land, weather patterns, and environmental resources. It was clear to me that any operations conducted in the Arctic are reliant on cooperation with the Rangers. Overall, CWOL and AOA were very interesting courses that gave me a new and more detailed perspective on winter and Arctic operations, and I'm looking forward to applying these lessons in further training.

2025 Nijmegen March

The 2025 4Days Marches will be held from Tuesday, July 15th to Friday, July 19th in Nijmegen, the Netherlands. This is the world's largest walking achievement event with over 45,000 participants (around 6,000 military and 39,000 civilian) from 70 different countries. The Queen's Own Rifles of Canada have a deep connection with the event, by sending teams and participants since the 1950's. The Canadian Armed Forces no longer send an official contingent, however there are still many Canadians—both military and civilian—that participate in the event. In 2025, a small group of veterans from the QOR will be participating. If you would like to participate, please contact smoody@1860club.ca no later than December 15th, 2024.

NEW BOOK: THE ENGLISH TRIP OF 1910

"As a retired Regimental Sergeant Major of the Queen's Own and the current Curator of the Regiment's museum at Casa Loma Toronto, I'm very happy to see that this story is finally being told. Most books and articles about the Queen's Own rightly focus on the battles and wars its soldiers have fought in. However, this is a story about the soldiers of the Regiment training for war on the other side of the Atlantic and how one of its most famous Commanding Officers, Major General Sir Henry Pellatt, was instrumental in achieving that aim." —CWO Shaun Kelly, CD (Ret'd), Curator at The Queen's Own Rifles of Canada Museum and Archive at Casa Loma

QOR Association Update

Good Day Fellow QOR Members,

On October 25th, Sir George Beardshaw was honoured at the Ontario Legislature in Queen's Park. George is the last surviving QOR WWII Veteran, and he turned 101 in September. Furthermore, he is also the last surviving WWII veteran from the British Home Children.

Well done, Sir George Beardshaw! A video of the ceremony may be viewed here:

To support Home Children Canada, please consider ordering a charity calendar from Canadian Bombshell Beauties.

In addition to George's recent birthday celebration, we also celebrated RWR WWII Veteran Jim Park's 100th birthday in Uxbridge.

Regarding this year's Golf Tournament, we would like to express our appreciation for the kind donation of the Golf Trophies by former Padre of the Association John Howie.
